Game for the Fool-Killer.

We reprint below an article from the Globe-Democrat, outlining the religious (?) vagaries of one J. W. Caldwell, a quondam minister in the Christian church and known to many people of that faith in this vicinity. We do not publish it on account of the originality, novelty or importance of the views expressed, but simply to illustrate what an unredeemable fool a man can be come when he earnestly sets himself to the task.

J. W. Caldwell has been converted from the Christian church and has joined Dr. Cave's church of Liberal Christianity. He preached yesterday in the Non-Sectarian church, corner Lindell and Vandeventer avenues, and announced that arrangements had been perfected with Dr. Cave, and he would fill that pulpit during Dr. Cave's absence and become his associate pastor.

In his sermon yesterday morning Mr. Caldwell said that he had given the matter considerable thought and had not taken the step suddenly. The men in all ages who have stood high among their fellows—like the mountain peaks that kiss the sky—are those who have had marked individuality and followed the inspiration of a Plato or a Jesus. To meet the necessities of society, the church must become an organization and make its appeal solely to the individual. The time will come when we will incorporate the thoughts of Tyndall and other writers in the text of the Bible of humanity. He thought the expression to the glory of man was preferable to the expression to the glory of God. He spoke of the mission of the liberal thinkers, and declared that in his wide experience in the Christian church he found everywhere an unret, and believed that orthodox Christians are tired of the shackles of the old ideas and are seeking for the new doctrines.

After the close of the sermon a Globe-Democrat reporter asked Mr. Caldwell about his change of faith and his plans for the future. He said he was a Kentuckian by birth, had been a member of the Christian or Disciples church for twenty years, and a minister for about five years in that church. Up to two weeks ago he was pastor of the church at Linneus, Mo. For the past three years he has been "a heretic" in the orthodox sense, and had often been called down by the church press and in open conventions, but never arraigned for heresy. When Dr. Cave left the Disciples' church he wrote Dr. Cave letters of sympathy. On the fifth Sunday in April he preached in the Non-Sectarian church on the subject: "What the Twentieth Century Church Will Believe," and this sermon exhibited to that congregation the fact he was with them in faith. Two weeks ago he resigned his pastorate at Linneus, Mo., called for his church letter, and left the orthodox communion forever. He gave the reporter an outline of his faith. He does not believe in the Bible any more than any other ancient literature. Christ was a good man, but not God, and every man has a part of God in him. He intends within a few months to read lessons from Emerson and other authors in connection with his Bible lessons at the regular church services. When asked particularly about the expression in his sermon that the time will come when the text of the Bible will include the best of all other books, he said for illustration, the truths printed in the "Globe-Democrat" will ultimately be incorporated as a part of the Bible. He simply meant that the Bible is to be accepted or rejected just as a man's conscience leads him. He pointed out several passages, and said he did not believe them.

"If I understand you correctly," remarked the reporter, "your faith is essentially what the Buddhists believe."

He said it was practically the same as far as evolution and individuality of transmigration is concerned. If he should enter a Buddhist temple he could enter the spirit of the worship, and have no objections as to the different ideas of God. He thought the prayer "Namamih Butsu" about the same as the benediction.

In Jail Again.

Deputy Sheriff Dempsey went to Wells last Tuesday and captured Dr. J. L. Maier, who escaped from jail on Tuesday of last week. The doctor was hiding out, but by the aid of a couple of spies he was located in a skirt of timber, near Wien, and placed under arrest.

Since his return to jail he seems to have found his appetite, and will perhaps find jail life more tolerable hereafter.

Messrs. A. S. Taylor and George W. West shipped two car loads of cattle and one of hogs and James Wren, one car load, each, of cattle and hogs from Keytesville station to St. Louis last Tuesday. Mr. West and Mr. Wren went down to the city with the stock, and report having struck a fairly good market.

Mr. John Comstock, of Peoria, Ill., one of the COTRIER'S staunch friends, has our thanks for cash on subscription.

We might have printed the picture of Hon. T. P. Schooner this week, had we not remembered, with a sensation of horror, the fate that befell the picture of Maj. Jos. H. Finks, at the hands of one of Salisbury's infuriated citizens, when he beheld it in the columns of his St. Louis Republic. Two such reminders presented to his inflamed imagination within the brief space of two short months would be to

"Pour the sweet milk of concord into Hell, Uproar the universal peace, confound All unity in Salisbury."
